The Great American Outdoors Act National Parks and Public Land Legacy Restoration Fund (GAOA LRF) is a commitment to protecting and sustaining our public lands.

Established on August 4, 2020, GAOA LRF allocates over $1.6 billion annually from fiscal years (FY) 2021 through 2025 to the Department of the Interior (Interior) to address priority deferred maintenance and repair needs on public lands and Bureau of Indian Education-funded schools. With all five years of GAOA LRF funding, Interior bureaus will:

- Fund 396 projects across 50 states, the District of Columbia, and multiple territories
- Address over $5.9 billion in deferred maintenance and repair
- Improve the condition of over 3,800 Interior assets

The First Bank of the United States, part of Independence National Historic Park in Philadelphia, operated between 1797-1811 after the Federal government adopted Alexander Hamilton’s proposal to establish a national bank, laying the foundation of the U.S.’s financial systems. The bank will undergo an extensive rehabilitation ahead of the 250th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence so it can reopen to the public for the first time since the 1970s. This project work will renovate the building’s interior and exterior by replacing leaking metal roofing, stabilizing, cleaning, and repairing marble and brick masonry, correcting moisture incursion problems, and updating the electrical and HVAC systems.

GAOA LRF is funding Maintenance Action Teams (MATs) in the National Park Service and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. MATs primarily consist of federal employees who mobilize regionally to work on smaller scope construction, demolition, rehabilitation, or preservation activities. As of September 2023, MATs have completed work Erie National Wildlife Refuge, Cherry Valley National Wildlife Refuge, and Johnstown Flood National Memorial in Pennsylvania.

At Erie National Wildlife Refuge, MATs completed improvements to the trail bridge system, including the installation of handrails and kick rails.
